LONGEST TOW ON RECORD

The Chronicle of Feb. 27 says:

Completing the longest tow on record, the Standard Oil Company's steamer Atlas, Captain Thomas Fenlon, arrived vesterday afternoon from New York with the big barge No. 93, both steamer/and barge laden with oil. The vessels anchored in the lower bay, and this morning will begin to discharge their cargoes.

Seventy-two days were occupied by the Atlas in bringing the barge from New York. In the north Atlantic, not long after putting to sea, the sixinch steel cable used as a tow line parted, but another was substituted within an hour, and from that time until both vessels dropped anchor

In connection with the sailing of the above steamers, the agents are pre- miles of the distance the same big Atlas and her barge, by means of which all slack in the tow line was taken up automatically, thus preventing unnecessary slacking of the line and consequent parting of the cable. The worst weather during the whole trip was in the straits of Magellan, where for three days thick and foggy weather was experienced. Outside Cape Pillar, in the Pacific, more rough weather was run into, but the Atlas and her tow met with no serious trouble. Not a single vessel was sighted after leaving the straits, and the Atlas and her tow were not even in communication with each other.

The Atlas is a tank steamer and left New York with 15,000 barrels of fuel S. S. Nebraskan.....April 9 oil in her hold. All but 5000 barrels of this cargo was used for fuel on the way. The barge left New York with S. S. Oregonian ........... March 23 21,000 barrels, or 1,255,000 gallons of sand barrels of fuel oil that was consteam steering gear and winches with which she is provided.

The barge is a fine vessel in appearmasts, and sails were used whenever possible on the trip from New York. The forward mast is used as a smokestack for the donkey engine, used in operating the steam steering-gear and winches, and the after mast is used as a smokestack for the galley.

Both steamer and barge are' to be employed by the Standard Oil Company on this coast. The Atlas was built in 1898 at Chester, Penn., and is 248 feet long, with a breadth of 40.1 feet and depth of 22.5 feet. She carries a crew of twenty-five men. The barge is commanded by Captain Edward Erickson, who has a crew of eleven men. The vessel was built two years ago. She is regarded as an up-to-date oil carrier. She is 280 feet long, 45 feet in breadth and 30 feet deep, and when laden with 28,000 barrels of oil has a draft of 21 feet.

Captain Fenlon of the Atlas reports that in Magellan straits he learned that the steamer Cumbral of the Grace line, which went ashore some months ago in Smythe channel, would be floated again in about a month. The steamer was bound from New York for Valparaiso.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The barkentine Albert got away for the coast with a full load of sugar yesterday afternoon. Island steamers sailing last night were the Nilhau and the Mikahala, both for Kauai ports. The British ship Senator has finished discharging her coal, and has swung out into the stream to fumigate. The American-Hawaiian liner Nevadan should arrive from San Francisco this morning with one day's later The Pacific Mall liner Manchuria will be some days late in arriving here, the rearrangement of the schedule accounting for the delay. The barkentine Coronado sailed for

San Francisco yesterday with 22,600 bags of sugar, a number of empty gasoline drums and five passengers. The barks W. B. Flint and Andrew Welch arrived in San Francisco yesterday. The Flint was 27 days out from Makaweli and the Welch 29 from Ho-

Since the sailing of the two sugar boats yesterday the harbor has become very quiet. The storm has kept the fleet of vessels about due away from the islands.
